Cinema and Fascism Krimz	Sexueller Missbrauch von Kindern Walter de Gruyter GmbH & Co KG
A collection of Japanese poems accompanied by their English translations	In works by filmmakers from Bertolucci to Spielberg, debauched images of nazi and fascist eroticism, symbols of violence and immorality, often bear an uncanny resemblance to the images and symbols once used by the fascists themselves to demarcate racial, sexual, and political others. This book exposes the "madness" inherent in such a course, which attests to the impossibility of disengaging visual and rhetorical constructions from political, ideological, and moral codes. Kriss Ravetto argues that contemporary discourses using such devices actually continue unacknowledged rhetorical, moral, and visual analogies of the past. Against postwar fictional and historical accounts of World War II in which generic images of evil characterize the nazi and the fascist, Ravetto sets the more complex approach of such filmmakers as Pier Paolo Pasolini, Liliana Cavani, and Lina Wertmüller. Her book asks us to think deeply about what it means to say that we have conquered fascism, when the aesthetics of fascism still describe and determine how we look at political figures and global events. "This extremely short little book finds Burroughs in his funniest, clearest and most vicious voice with a brief introduction and four grotesque, pointed and politically themed "routines" that walk the line between essays and short stories."--goodreads	Die Arbeit beschäftigt sich mit der Behandlung von verurteilten Sexualstraftätern. Im Rahmen einer Metaanalyse soll der Forschungsstand zu rückfallpräventiver Wirksamkeit der Straftäterbehandlung zusammengefaßt werden. Im Zentrum der Analyse steht einerseits, inwieweit vorliegende Behandlungsangebote für diese Tätergruppe zielführend sind, andererseits soll versucht werden, spezifische Aspekte erfolgreicher Behandlung zu isolieren. Der Autor nimmt eine allgemeine Charakterisierung von Sexualstraftätern, der Prävelanz sexueller Delinquenz und der Rückfälligkeit sowie der Folgen für die Opfer sexueller Übergriffe vor, um einen Überblick über den Gegenstandsbereich zu gewinnen und die Notwendigkeit eines angemessenen Umgangs mit Stratätern zu dokumentieren. In der darauf folgenden Konzentration auf behandlungsrelevante Charakteristika von Sexualstraftätern und den verfügbaren allgemeinen Behandlungskonzepten sollen die Grundlagen der anschließenden Wirksamkeitsüberprüfung solcher Maßnahmen gelegt werden. Es erfolgt die Darstellung einer eigenen umfassenden metaanalytischen Integration deutscher und internationaler rückfallbezogener Wirksamkeitsuntersuchungen.

A comprehensive survey of the growing field of social neuroscience.	In modern societies, surgical castration is still an archaic means to treat aggressive sex offenders. In this book, the German author reveals emotional reactions and social coping mechanisms of adult castrates. Based on interviews, he further demonstrates sexual attitudes and the profile of dangerousness of castrated sex offenders during their second life.

Der Leipziger Kommentar setzt auch in der 13. Auflage die Maßstäbe für die Wissenschaft zum materiellen Strafrecht. In 20 Bänden beleuchtet das hochkarätige Autorenteam das Strafgesetzbuch sowie das Völkerstrafgesetzbuch in allen Facetten und mit bemerkenswerter Tiefe; dabei bleibt keine Frage unbeantwortet. Von der Entstehungsgeschichte über Reformfragen, bis hin zu rechtsvergleichenden Darstellungen sowie unter Einschluss verwandter Rechtsgebiete wie der Kriminologie und des Völkerstrafrechts findet der Benutzer eine erschöpfende Darstellung und wissenschaftliche Aufbereitung der gesamten Materie. Der Großkommentar gibt den gegenwärtigen Erkenntnisstand in Rechtsprechung und Literatur vollständig wieder und bietet Hilfe zur Lösung auch entlegener Probleme. In Band 10 sind die Vorschriften des Besonderen Teils des StGB zu den Straftaten gegen die sexuelle Selbstbestimmung (§§ 174- 184j), zur Beleidigung (§§ 185-200) und zur Verletzung des persönlichen Lebens- und Geheimbereichs (§§ 201-207) kommentiert.	Die 39jährige Hilde verzweifelt an ihrem Leben und daran, dass alle Versuche, es zu verbessern, scheitern. In ihrer dunkelsten Stunde trifft sie zufällig auf ihren zukünftigen Therapeuten und lässt sich widerwillig auf eine Therapie ein. In meist humorvollen, manchmal auch ernsten, aber stets unterhaltsamen Diskussionen setzt sich Hilde mit ihrem Beruf, ihren Eltern, Freundinnen und Liebchaften auseinander. Dabei gelingt es ihrem schrulligen Therapeuten immer wieder, ihre depressionsfördernden Gedankengebäude ins Wanken zu bringen. Ein Buch, das destruktive Handlungsmuster und Glaubenssätze thematisiert und zum Nachdenken über eigene Verhinderungsstrategien anregt.

A History of Italian Cinema, 2nd edition is the much anticipated update from the author of the bestselling Italian Cinema - which has been published in four landmark editions and will celebrate its 35th anniversary in 2018. Building upon decades of research, Peter Bondanella and Federico Pacchioni reorganize the current History in order to keep the book fresh and responsive not only to the actual films being created in Italy in the twenty-first century but also to the rapidly changing priorities of Italian film studies and film scholars. The new edition brings the definitive history of the subject, from the birth of cinema to the present day, up to date with a revised filmography as well as more focused attention on the melodrama, the crime film, and the historical drama. The book is expanded to include a new generation of directors as well as to highlight themes such as gender issues, immigration, and media politics. Accessible, comprehensive, and heavily illustrated throughout, this is an essential purchase for any fan of Italian film.	Brion Gysin (1916-1986) was a visual artist, historian, novelist, and an experimental poet credited with the discovery of the ‘cut-up’ technique -- a collage of texts, not pictures -- which his longtime collaborator William S. Burroughs put to more extensive use. He is also considered one of the early innovators of sound poetry, which he defines as ‘getting poetry back off the page and into performance.’ Back in No Time gathers materials from the entire Gysin oeuvre: scholarly historical study, baroque fiction, permuted and cut-up poetry, unsettling memoir, selections from The Process and The Last Museum, and his unproduced screenplay of Burroughs’ novel Naked Lunch. In addition, the Reader contains complete texts of several Gysin pieces that are difficult to find, including “Poem of Poems,” “The Pipes of Pan,” and “A Quick Trip to Alamut.”

When Benito Mussolini proclaimed that "Cinema is the strongest weapon," he was telling only half the story. In reality, very few feature films during the Fascist period can be labeled as propaganda. Re-viewing Fascism considers the many films that failed as "weapons" in creating cultural consensus and instead came to reflect the complexities and contradictions of Fascist culture. The volume also examines the connection between cinema of the Fascist period and neorealism—ties that many scholars previously had denied in an attempt to view Fascism as an unfortunate deviation in Italian history. The postwar directors Luchino Visconti, Roberto Rossellini, and Vittorio de Sica all had important roots in the Fascist era, as did the Venice Film Festival. While government censorship loomed over Italian filmmaking, it did not prevent frank depictions of sexuality and representations of men and women that challenged official gender policies. Re-viewing Fascism brings together scholars from different cultural and disciplinary backgrounds as it offers an engaging and innovative look into Italian cinema, Fascist culture, and society.	In A Not So Foreign Affair Andrea Slane investigates the influence of images of Nazism on debates about sexuality that are central to contemporary American political rhetoric. By analyzing an array of films, journalism, scholarly theories, melodrama, video, and propaganda literature, Slane describes a common rhetoric that emerged during the 1930s and 1940s as a means of distinguishing “democratic sexuality” from that ascribed to Nazi Germany. World War II marked a turning point in the cultural rhetoric of democracy, Slane claims, because it intensified a preoccupation with the political role of private life and pushed sexuality to the center of democratic discourse. Having created tremendous anxiety—and fascination—in American culture, Nazism became associated with promiscuity, sexual perversion and the destruction of the family. Slane reveals how this particular imprint of fascism is used in progressive as well as conservative imagery and language to further their domestic agendas and shows how our cultural engagement with Nazism reflects the inherent tension in democracy between the value of diversity, individual freedoms national identity, and notions of the common good. Finally, she applies her analysis of wartime narratives to contemporary texts, examining anti-abortion, anti-gay, and anti-federal rhetoric, as well as the psychic life of skinheads, censorship debates, and the contemporary fascination with incest. An invaluable resource for understanding the language we use—both visual and narrative—to describe and debate democracy in the United States today, A Not So Foreign Affair will appeal to those interested in cultural studies, film and video studies, American studies, twentieth century history, German studies, rhetoric, and sexuality studies.

This book examines some of the most significant recent developments in film and critical theory. The book is divided into four sections, each dealing with established and alternative critical concepts and approaches. These four are: The Gaze and Subjectivity; Film and Discourse; Film and Culture; Film and Meaning. Each of these topics is explored using concepts from post-structuralism and postmodernism, working towards the idea that the relationship between film studies and critical theory is a vital and diverse interplay of rich and exciting ideas.

"Lutz Koepnick's The Dark Mirror provides one of the finest, most compelling and suggestive accounts to date of the multiple locations of German cinema between Hitler and Hollywood. Charting the shifting relationships between institutional contexts and individual acts of reception, Koepnick persuasively shows how the German cinema and its filmmakers—both in exile and in Nazi Germany—contributed to a fragile, stratified, indeed, "nonsynchronous" public sphere."—Patrice Petro, author of Aftershocks of the New: Feminism and Film History "Lutz Koepnick's brilliant study debunks the received wisdom concerning Nazi German and Hollywood film of the 1930s and 40s. Using detailed analyses of 8 films, with special focus on sound and music, he insists upon the disjointed contexts and uneven relationships of American and German filmmaking. Historically nuanced and theoretically savvy, this remarkable book offers something for everyone: Americanists, Germanists, historians, students of cinema sound and music, those interested in debates between art and popular forms, and European and Hollywood production."—Caryl Flinn, author of Strains of Utopia
